Examining Horse Deaths Related to Endurance Rides

By Nancy S. Loving, DVM (from 13 years of vet.reports.)

Information related to safety for endurance rides is consistent with the needs on other rides. If you can't google this, I will forward the entire text. P.W. Summary: the best ways a rider can reduce risk is to be in tune with their horse, manage him properly through the ride, voluntarily withdraw when the horse is not performing as expected- and monitor carefully after the ride.

There were 96 fatalities out of 270,070 horses entered in endurance competitions: 69 were euthanized and 27 died, eighty-seven had participated in the ride while nine others died of causes not related to the demands of the ride.

Thirty % of deaths resulted from falls, catastrophic injury, gastrointestinal, sudden death, and one lost. Seventy % were attributed to demands of exercise severe muscle cramping and exhaustion leading to poor intestinal motility, stomach rupture, adrenal failure and laminitis.

In general, the hotter and dryer areas of the US had a slightly higher percentage of fatalities. Longer ride distance is related to colic and metabolic compromise. 50 miles 2 x fatalities and 100 miles 10 x fatalities. Horses in limited distance rides had same fatality rates as horses in pasture.

 Important finding: 20 of these horses actually finished the ride and received completion awards yet developed signs of exhaustion after the ride with fatalities developing over the next couple of days. Owners of 19 of these horses declined fluid therapy or referral to a hospital when recommended by the vets at the ride site which is important to mention. Again, the findings emphasized the importance of riders to respond to the behavior of their horses and withdraw before the danger may be noted by ride staff.

Website Remodel

Time to take a gander at the www.cccaha.org website. Jerry Beatty has set up the club site for easier searching and to give space for the calendar and activities. He is now the web master with knowledge to keep the site current and useful. There is an expanded youth coverage. This is the first choice to get information, archive of club minutes and photos. Club members are encouraged to check the sponsors page and patronize them and their businesses. A thank you will encourage them to sponsor again.

Sponsorships Important

The CCCAHA is expanding and supporting the youth activities which adds a budget item. The club insurance is an important expense. The last couple of years it has been necessary to dip back in the savings from the Class A Horse shows of 20 years ago to fund current expenses. Because of the effort to keep expenses low and provide quality events at an affordable cost to participants and to promote the Arabian Horse, sponsorships are as always an important source of income. As for about 50 years, the plea is out for members to sponsor and ask friends and businesses to sponsor -tax deductible. See web site for forms.

March Trail Ride Success

A good turn out of CCCHA members, and 4H ers thanks to Brenda Gilardone, youth director, for organizing the youth centered event with the Rocky Mt. Horse Association. Again Brenda's magic worked with a clear weather day between rains. The footing was fine. It turned out to be a beautiful, wild flower ride as might be expected at Paradise Canyon Ranch.
